

Supporting choice, independence and quality of life for older people and people with dementia

High quality care services, tailored to your needs.

What is Private Care?

Private Care is individually designed to provide tailored support for older people and people with dementia. The service can be arranged on a short term basis, for example for support following a hospital stay, or the service can be ongoing. Private Care also provides clients with the opportunity to receive care above and beyond what can be provided through a government subsidised service.

HammondCare has significant experience in supporting people in their own homes and is an industry leader in caring for people living with dementia. Our Private Care clients are supported by an experienced Case Manager, and care is provided by care workers with expertise in caring for older people and people living with dementia. Services will be formally outlined in an agreement, and are supported by HammondCare's quality systems.

What support can I get?

Services are tailored to your specific needs. Support including social outings, personal care, home help, medication assistance, shopping, respite and transport can be provided. We can also provide support to participate in rehabilitation or exercise programs, including hydrotherapy. Care can be provided seven days a week, including in the evenings.

Our Manager will:

- Visit you in your own home
- Listen as you explain your needs and assist with creative solutions
- Help develop a range of care and support services designed to help you stay at home longer
- Partner with you in developing ongoing support
- Provide additional helpful information

Case study

Care that can really make a difference.

Mr Moylan is 87 and lives alone. For many years he has been refusing medical treatment or assistance with meals or shopping.

As he is very resistant to anyone entering his home, our careworkers spent many visits talking with him on the porch about his garden and asking for advice on gardening matters, gradually gaining his trust and acceptance.

Slowly, Mr Moylan began to look forward to visits and accepted help with medication, shopping, meal preparation, personal care and outings. His mental state has improved and, along with it, his personal and home cleanliness. Mr Moylan's family asked HammondCare careworkers to attend his 88th birthday tea - because, in their words, 'HammondCare staff are like an extension of our family.'
